PROPOSED WORLD'S FAIR SITES VISITED.

of this stream by the sewage all the sewage would have to be conducted to one point, and then, without septic treatment, raised by pumps so as to flow into the Pine street sewer, and hence through the Mill Creek sewer into the Mississippi River.

PROBLEM OF DRAINAGE YET TO BE SOLVED.
This work would not be expensive. For seven years, before the Waterworks in the Chain of Rocks, the Waterworks maintained a pumping station at Harlow Creek to prevent that stream from emptying into the Mississippi River above the city intake. The pumping plant cost between $10,000 and $15,000, and its operation was very expensive.

It is said that for $100,000 the site which is worst equipped with regard to sewage disposal could be made equal to the best equipped sewer. By a resort to septic tanks and pumps sewage disposal is not a hard problem.

With regard to water supply the Carondelet Park and the southwestern sites are the most poorly equipped. According to city officials considerable work would be required to make the supply adequate for extensive water effects, such as fountains and cascades, at either of these sites.

The entire water supply of the city comes from the Baden and the Bismarck pumping stations. Carondelet Park is more than ten miles from Bismarck Point. Two 3-inch main lines from Bismarck Point to Carondelet Park, one from Bismarck Point to Carondelet Park, and one from Bismarck Point to Carondelet Park, are being laid every few years by service pipes, so that by the time they reach Carondelet Park the frictional resistance of the pipes and the loss from service taps has reduced the pressure, which started at about 100 feet at Bismarck Point, to between forty-five and sixty pounds.

All the northern sites, except the Prospect Heights site, which has a water supply, have no supply except wells, and as it is located in the heart of the city, water supply only by special arrangement of the Exposition company with the city.

WAY OF WATER SUPPLY.
The water supply of the Forest Park and the northwest sites is the same. A 36-inch main line from Union avenue and a 36-inch main line from Union avenue, with an eight-inch pressure at Forest Park, and an eight-inch pressure at the northwest site.

Considerable work would be required to equip the northwest site with a water supply. The 36-inch main line which runs over Union avenue through Forest Park now turns out Michoud avenue to supply to elementary institutions. If the site were located in Southwest St. Louis a branch from this main would have to be run to the site.

Advocates of the northwest site lay stress on the claim that their site contains the highest point in the city. The plots of the topographical survey of the site, made for the use of the Sewer Department, show that the highest point in the city is the Forest Park site. The highest point on the northwest site is shown to be 183 feet above the river level. The highest point on the Forest Park site is shown to be 183 feet, near the intersection of Clayton avenue and the Forest Park road.

The ground falls to 35 feet above the river level in the bed of the river des Peres. The topographical plots show other sudden and erratic variations of elevation in the section of Forest Park the use of which is advocated by the World's Fair site.

Marcus Bernheimer, for the Meramec Highlands site, yesterday offered to the Louisiana Purchase Exposition Company the free use of any part of the 600 acres of land at the Meramec Highlands. The ground is offered for use in conjunction with a site within the city limits, an "advance or far west" outlet for the Fair.

Mr. Bernheimer declares himself ready to appear before the Louisiana Purchase Exposition Company and give further information about the proposals.

NEGRO BURNED AT STAKE.
He Assaulted a Florida White Woman, Then Murdered Her.

Bartow, Fla., May 29.—Fred Rochelle, a negro, 35 years old, who at noon yesterday criminally assaulted and then murdered Mrs. Rena Taggart, a well known and respectable white woman of this city, was burned at the stake here early this evening in the presence of a throng of people.

The burning took place on the scene of the negro's crime, within 100 yards of the principal thoroughfare of this city.

In spite of the Sheriff and a strong guard of extra deputies, who made every effort to prevent the scene of the crime from becoming a place of public resort, a large throng of people of all ages, who were resolute and determined to see the execution, gathered around the scene of the crime.

He was half dragged, half carried to the stake, enveloped by a great throng of people of all ages, who were resolute and determined to see the execution, gathered around the scene of the crime.

By common consent, burning was to be the penalty for the crime. The stake was the only suggestion to the proper execution of the crime, and without organized effort, and yet with apparently unanimous understanding, a barrel was in readiness to be used for the purpose.

Where Mrs. Taggart was assaulted and murdered.

On Staked in Vale for Mercy.
In this the negro was placed and chained to the stake. He pleaded for mercy, but in vain. The executioner, who was a white man, refused to grant him silence was the only response.

There were no contrabands. The negro was made fast, cans of kerosene oil from many sources were passed to the front and the fire was kindled. When the fire was applied, the blaze quickly leaped away as a dark object in a circle of a roaring flame.

Then He Burned Fifteen Minutes.
Then the fire reached the stake and the body came back in full view, but already the flames had ceased and the only evidence of the crime was the contortions of the muscles of the limbs.

For fifteen minutes the body burned and in half hour the executioner, who was a white man, refused to grant him silence was the only response.

The crowd dispersed as quietly as it had gathered, and at 8:30 to-night the city is quiet.

LINDEN HOTEL SUICIDE CONCEALED HIS IDENTITY.

Young Man Who Registered as "T. L. Maxey, Chicago," Found Dead in His Room With a Bullet in His Head.

A young man who had registered as "T. L. Maxey, Chicago," was found dead in his room in the Linden Hotel yesterday afternoon, with a bullet wound in the side of his head.

The nature of the wound, the position of the body, a revolver with one chamber empty, and other circumstances, convinced the police that the man had committed suicide after deliberate preparations to keep his identity from becoming known.

All marks had been removed from his clothing and there were no letters, besides an engraved card bearing the name "Thomas L. Maxey," a small note book issued by the National Bank of Kansas City, and a pamphlet advertising the golf links at Richmond, Va., no clue was left.

The note book, in which the name "T. L. Maxey" appears in the same writing as that on the hotel register, is considered evidence that the man had committed suicide. This probably was the suicide's real name.

Telegrams from Kansas City, Chicago and Richmond assert that no one of the name given by the suicide is known in either city. Late last night no one had called at the morgue to identify the body.

Maxey would not have been in the hotel, and registered, had he not been in the corner of the room. A revolver was close to the body.

The office of the Fourth Police District were notified at once, and they took charge of the corpse. Every effort made to establish the man's identity or had some of his relatives had proved futile up to a late hour last night.

The dead man was, apparently, about 25 years old, 5 feet 8 inches in height, dark hair, blue eyes, and a high forehead. He was dressed in a dark suit, a white shirt, and a dark tie. He had never before, so far as known, been a guest of the hotel.

IRON TRADE REVIEW.
Strike of Machinists the Feature of the Situation.

Cleveland, O., May 29.—The Iron Trade Review to-morrow will say:
It is not surprising that the machine shop proprietors of the country are ready to turn to some different method of dealing with the machinists' union. While the press dispatches have been carrying across the country daily installments of strike settlements, involving consolidation of the strikers' demands, representatives of the largest metal-working concerns of the country have been all the time in session, and have taken steps accordingly. As this is written a meeting of leading manufacturers is being held in Chicago, from which it is expected some plan will issue for properly safeguarding the vast interests involved in machinery manufacture in the United States.

The well-known opposition of the International Association of Machinists to piecework, coupled with the double movement for a shorter day and an increased wage, and the practical refusal of local unions to carry out the "handy man" provisions of the New York agreement, have brought out some of the problems involved in the great struggle in the engineering trades of England.

While the Chicago conference of Tuesday of this week was called by the iron trade, the question for the machine shop of that city, the manufacturers' gathering was suggested by the Chicago Great Western, five men from different sections of the country, and the outcome will be of great importance. The gathering will be held at Buffalo, Cleveland, Hamilton, Dayton, Detroit, Cleveland, Milwaukee, Minneapolis and St. Paul, and will be held at the latter place.

At the manufacturers' gathering, through their local organizations, are standing firmly against the demands of the machinists' union in their present form.
